Background on the Gospel Reading

Today's reading is the beginning of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, which is found in Matthew's Gospel. The form of the Beatitudes found here is not unique to Jesus. Beatitudes are found in the Old Testament, in the psalms, and in wisdom literature, for example. They are a way to teach about who will find favor with God.

We quickly note in this reading that the people whom Jesus calls "blessed" and "happy" are not people we think of as blessed or happy . . . the poor in spirit, the meek, the persecuted. This Gospel is one of reversals. Jesus' blueprint for happiness reflects little of what the world might call happiness.

"Blessed" is sometimes translated as happy, fortunate, or favored. In other words, Jesus is saying that divine favor is upon those who are poor, those who mourn, those who are persecuted. This news might have been welcome—and surprising—to the crowds who heard Jesus that day.

The Beatitudes can be understood as a framework for Christian living. Our vocation as Christians is not to be first in this world, but rather to be first in the eyes of God. By referring to the good things that the faithful will experience, Matthew reminds us that those who act in the manner described in the Beatitudes will find their reward with God.

Rabbi Joshua Lief from Temple Shalom in Wheeling, has kindly agreed to a visit and presentation at St. Vincent's Parish on Wednesday, March 15th. This event will take place in the Church Sanctuary from 6:30 pm to 8:30 pm.

Rabbi Lief will be speaking on the similarities between the Passover and the Eucharist, and will then be conducting a Question and Answer session to address any questions that we, as Catholics, may have about the Jewish faith.

Rabbi Lief is very excited by our invitation, and in return, we hope to have a nice turn-out for his presentation and show him our St. Vincent's hospitality.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Why do Catholics make the sign of the cross?

Most commonly and properly the words "sign of the cross" are used of the large cross traced from forehead to breast and from shoulder to shoulder, such as Catholics are taught to make upon themselves when they begin their prayers, and such also as the priest makes at the foot of the altar when he commences Mass with the words: "In the name of the Father and of the son and of the Holy Spirit."

Another kind of sign of the cross is that made in the air by bishops, priests, and others in blessing persons or material objects. This cross recurs also many times in the liturgy of the Mass and in nearly all the ritual offices connected with the sacraments and sacramentals.

A third variety is represented by the little cross, generally made with the thumb, which the priest or deacon traces for example upon the book of the Gospels and then upon his own forehead, lips, and breast at Mass, as also that made upon the lips in the breviary prayer, or again upon the forehead of the infant in Baptism, and upon the various organs of sense in the Sacrament of the anointing of the sick etc.

We have positive evidence in the early Fathers that such a practice was familiar to Christians in the second century. The Church has always attributed effects of grace and power to the use of the holy sign of the cross. It reminds us that God has loved us so much as to give up His only Son for our sake to suffer on the Cross, and that we must love Him with our whole hearts. It recalls to us that he is bound to imitate in his daily conduct the penance, mortification, humility, meekness, patience, detachment, chastity, agape love and obedience of Jesus his Lord and Master. It revives our faith with belief in the Unity and Trinity of God and the Incarnation and Redemption. It strengthens our hope by recalling that all blessings come through the Cross and by fostering a habit of seeking aid through the Cross.
